

My right to privacy should be upheld. In no way should you allow banks or anyone I do business with call me unsolicited. Just because I buy a product from someone that should not give them the right to invade my privacy. Whats next, because I shop at Walmart they can call me whenever they wish. Because I buy gas at speedway, they can call me whenever they wish. This will create a loophole in the law that anyone or business that I have contact with can call me. That will put us back to square one. Another way to look at this is if companies have associations. In other words, say a company that makes widget x buys a list of phone numbers from my bank. Because I bank with bank x and because widget x did a business transaction with them now they have the right to call me. I value my family time and simply wish not to be disturbed. I believe that is my right. A phone should not be considered a marketing tool that can be exploited. A phone unfortunatly is a necessity to life. It is for communication of emergencies and with family and friends. It is also necessary for your job. There is a lot of important communication that transpires over the phone lines. Buying health insurance is not one of them. A phone is a necessity not a luxury and should not be exploited for marketing purposes. I simply cannot shut my phone off because I don't want to be bothered. I cannot change a channel because I wish not to be adverstised to. I PLEAD WITH YOU LEAVE THE LAW INTACT. THE BEST THING I HAVE EVER DONE WAS TO GET ON THE NO CALL LIST. IT HAS RESTORED PEACE IN MY HOUSE.

Thank you for your time
David J. Marr